Are privately owned utilities subject to strict liability for inverse condemnation even though their regulator, the California Public Utilities Commission, has now announced that there is no guaranty it will spread the costs of such liability across the benefitted public through rate recovery?

INTRODUCTION

Few issues have greater importance to the economy of California than whether privately owned utilities are subject to inverse condemnation liability but unable to recover the costs of that liability through their rates. Privately owned utilities serve over 75 percent of the State's residents across 75 percent of the State's territory, and play a vital role in California and its economy. And inverse condemnation claims against privately owned utilities are escalating exponentially as wildfires in California become more endemic and severe. But privately owned utilities are now caught in an untenable legal whipsaw between conflicting decisions of the Court of Appeal and the California Public Utilities Commission ("CPUC") regarding their inverse condemnation liability. That conflict urgently warrants this Court's review.

On the one hand, Court of Appeal decisions for the past two decades have held that privately owned utilities are strictly liable for inverse condemnation if they take or damage private property for public use (Cal. Const., art. I, § 19), just as government or other public entities are subject to such liability. (Barham v. S. Cal. Edison Co. (1999) 74 Cal.App.4th 744 (“Barham”); Pac. Bell Tel. Co. v. S. Cal. Edison Co. (2012) 208 Cal.App.4th 1400 (“Pacific Bell”).) Those decisions rest on the core assumption that the “underlying purpose” of inverse condemnation is “to distribute throughout the community the loss inflicted upon the individual by the making of the public improvements” (Holtz v. Super. Ct. (1970) 3 Cal.3d 296, 303 (“Holtz”)), and that privately owned utilities, consistent with that purpose, would be able to spread inverse condemnation costs across the ratepayers who benefit from the public utilities’ transmission and distribution of electrical power.

But, on the other hand, a recent decision of the CPUC undermines that assumption and upends the cost-spreading rationale for those decisions. In an administrative proceeding involving another privately owned utility, San Diego Gas and Electric Company (“SDG&E”), the CPUC rejected that assumption as “unsound.” Denying SDG&E’s application for recovery of inverse condemnation costs from several 2007 wildfires, a recent decision by the CPUC stated that “Inverse Condemnation principles are not relevant to a Commission reasonableness review under the prudent manager standard,” in which a utility may spread costs to the benefitted public only if it meets the “heavy burden” of demonstrating its actions were both reasonable and prudent. And individual CPUC Commissioners, in discussing the decision, suggested that the Court of Appeal’s decisions in Barham and Pacific Bell had been wrongly decided, for there is “no guaranty that ... private utilities can recover the cost” of inverse condemnation liability “from their rate payers,” and that application of inverse condemnation to privately owned utilities fails “to recognize important distinctions between public and private utilities.” The CPUC decision thus has knocked out the core premise of Barham and Pacific Bell.

The CPUC’s startling decision has also created a crisis for privately owned utilities in the capital and insurance markets, further underscoring the need for this Court’s review. California’s privately owned utilities have seen their market capitalization eroded and their credit downgraded in the aftermath of the CPUC's decision. And the problem will only worsen as additional wildfires increase the amount of inverse condemnation litigation against privately owned utilities. Thousands of plaintiffs have filed dozens of actions asserting inverse condemnation claims against privately owned utilities in Southern California Fire Cases, No. JCCP 4965 (Ventura County) and California North Bay Fire Cases, No. JCCP 4995 (San Francisco County). And several CPUC Commissioners themselves have urged judicial re-examination of the Court of Appeal decisions in Barham and Pacific Bell in light of these developments. This looming crisis has captured national media attention as well. (See, e.g., Penn, Power Companies' Mistakes Can Cost Billions. Who Should Pay?, N.Y. Times (June 14, 2018).)

For all these reasons, the petition should be granted, and this Court should decide whether inverse condemnation liability applies to privately owned utilities if they cannot automatically pass along their inverse condemnation costs to their ratepayers.¹

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner PG&E is a privately owned public utility, and PG&E Corporation is its corporate parent. (7 App. 2426.) At the state level, privately owned utilities such as PG&E are regulated by the CPUC. (Cal. Const., art. XII, § 3; Pub. Util. Code, §§ 701–853, 1001, 1002, 2101.) Whereas publicly owned utilities can set their own customer rates, the rates of privately owned utilities such as PG&E are set by the CPUC. (Cal. Const., art. XII, § 6; Pac. Tel. & Tel. Co. v. City of Los Angeles (1955) 44 Cal.2d 272, 280.)

This case arises from a fire (the “Butte Fire”) that ignited when a tree contacted a powerline that PG&E constructed, owns, and maintains. (7 App. 2427–2428.) Before it was contained, the Butte Fire burned over 70,800 acres in Calaveras and Amador Counties. (1 App. 80.) Hundreds of structures were damaged and two people perished. (Ibid.) other torts. Indeed, plaintiffs in this coordinated proceeding allege numerous causes of action sounding in negligence, which are not at issue in this petition.

Following the fire, more than 3,700 individual plaintiffs who allegedly sustained damage caused by the fire and 64 insurers filed suit against PG&E and its contractors, ACRT, Inc. and Trees, Inc. (10 App. 3427.) These actions were coordinated as the Butte Fire Cases, No. JCCP 4853, and assigned to the Superior Court for the County of Sacramento (Sumner, J.). (1 App. 87.) Plaintiffs assert, among other claims, a claim for inverse condemnation. (1 App. 97–98.)

B. The Superior Court’s Ruling On Inverse Condemnation Liability

PG&E and Plaintiffs cross-moved for a decision whether, as a privately owned utility, PG&E could be held liable for inverse condemnation. (1 App. 54, 68–71; 3 App. 768.) The Superior Court held that, based on Barham and Pacific Bell, “PG&E may be held liable for inverse condemnation under California law even though it is a privately owned public utility.” (7 App. 2419.) The court explicitly “reject[ed] PG&E’s argument the cost-sharing policy underlying inverse condemnation does not apply because it lacks the power to spread the cost of condemnation across the benefitted public.” (7 App. 2434.)

C. The CPUC's Decision

In a decision issued November 30, 2017, the CPUC denied the application of SDG&E, another privately owned utility, to include in its rates unreimbursed inverse condemnation costs incurred to settle wildfire claims unrelated to this case. (8 App. 2523–92.) The CPUC denied recovery of SDG&E's inverse condemnation costs because it found that SDG&E had failed to prove that its conduct satisfied the CPUC's "prudent manager" standard. (8 App. 2694). The CPUC held that "Inverse Condemnation principles are not relevant to a Commission reasonableness review under the prudent manager standard," and stated that, "[e]ven if SDG&E were strictly liable, we see nothing in the cited case law that would supersede this Commission's exclusive jurisdiction over cost recovery/cost allocation issues involving Commission regulated utilities." (8 App. 2749.)

Several CPUC Commissioners, noting the inconsistency of their ruling with judicial precedent assuming that privately owned utilities would be able to spread inverse condemnation costs, expressly urged the courts to "re-examin[e]" the continued application of inverse condemnation to privately owned utilities.

(See, e.g., 8 App. 2793 at 21:29–22:15 [Commissioner Rechtschaffen] [“[T]he doctrine of inverse condemnation as it’s been developed by the courts and applied to public utilities may be worth re-examining in a sense that the courts applying the cases to public utilities have done so without really grappling with the salient difference between public and private utilities, which is that there’s no guaranty that ... private utilities can recover the cost from their rate payers.”]; 8 App. 2760, 2764 [joint concurrence of President and Commissioner Picker and Commissioner Guzman Aceves] [“[T]he logic for applying inverse condemnation to utilities—costs will necessarily be socialized across a large group rather than borne by a single injured property owner, regardless of prudence on the part of the utility—is unsound.”].)

D. The Trial Court’s Denial Of PG&E’s Renewed Motion

Following the CPUC’s decision, PG&E renewed its motion concerning inverse condemnation, arguing that the CPUC’s decision was a new fact eliminating the cost-spreading rationale underlying the extension of inverse condemnation liability to privately owned utilities. (7 App. 2448, 2453–54, 2458–59.) The Superior Court denied PG&E’s renewed motion, ruling that it was bound to follow the Court of Appeal decisions in Barham and Pacific Bell. (10 App. 3396.) Although the court recognized that “[t]he language of Barham and Pacific Bell must be construed in light of the facts of each case because ‘an opinion’s authority is no broader than its factual setting,’” the court was “not persuaded either decision rested on the assumption that the utility would automatically be able to pass on its losses as rate increases to its customers.” (10 App. 3395–96, quoting San Diego Cnty. Emps. Retirement Assn. v. Cnty of San Diego (2007) 151 Cal.App.4th 1163, 1183.)

E. PG&E’s Writ Petition In The Court Of Appeal

PG&E filed a petition for a writ of mandate in the Court of Appeal. In the petition, PG&E showed that it had no adequate remedy on appeal and would suffer irreparable injury absent writ relief because inverse condemnation liability would prejudice PG&E in the extensive mediations being conducted in the matter and in any trials. (Pet. 54, 78–79.) On June 7, 2018, the Court of Appeal summarily denied the petition without opinion. (Ex. A.)

REASONS WHY REVIEW SHOULD BE GRANTED

I. THIS COURT SHOULD RESOLVE THE CONFLICT BETWEEN THE DECISIONS OF THE COURT OF APPEAL AND THE CPUC CONCERNING INVERSE CONDEMNATION LIABILITY FOR PRIVATELY OWNED UTILITIES

Inverse condemnation, which allows recovery of compensation when private property is “taken or damaged for a public use” (Cal. Const., art. I, § 19(a)), imposes strict liability without regard to fault or foreseeability. (See Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal.4th 327, 367; Albers v. County of Los Angeles (1965) 62 Cal.2d 250, 263–264.) This Court has long reiterated that the purpose of inverse condemnation, like the purpose of condemnation in eminent domain, is “to distribute throughout the community the loss inflicted upon the individual by the making of public improvements.” (Locklin, supra, 7 Cal.4th at p. 365, quotation omitted.)²

² See also Customer Co. v. City of Sacramento (1995) 10 Cal.4th 368, 409 [“the relevant policy basis of article I, section [19], ... is to distribute throughout the community the loss inflicted upon the individual” by a public enterprise, internal quotation marks omitted]; Belair v. Riverside Cnty. Flood Control Dist. (1988) 47 Cal.3d 550, 558 (“Belair”), in bank [“the underlying purpose of our constitutional provision in inverse—as well as ordinary—condemnation is to distribute throughout the community the loss inflicted upon the individual,” internal quotation marks omitted]; Holtz, supra, 3 Cal.3d at p. 303 [“the underlying

Such cost-spreading occurs automatically when inverse condemnation liability is applied to state and local governments or other public entities, which may pass on the costs of that liability to the benefitted public through the coercive power of taxation or unilateral rate-setting. This Court has thus long applied inverse condemnation to governmental entities. (See, e.g., Customer Co., supra, 10 Cal.4th at p. 377; Bauer v. Ventura Cnty. (1955) 45 Cal.2d 276, 282–283, abrogated on other grounds as recognized by Belair, supra, 47 Cal.3d 550; House v. Los Angeles Cnty. Flood Control Dist. (1944) 25 Cal.2d 384, 388.) Inverse condemnation has been extended as well to other “public entities,” including public authorities and agencies as well as the State and its municipal subdivisions (see, e.g., Bunch v. Coachella Valley Water Dist. (1997) 15 Cal.4th 432, 451; Customer Co., supra, 10 Cal.4th at p. 409), and private actors acting jointly with a state actor, who may seek contribution from the state actor (see, e.g., purpose of our constitutional provision in inverse—as well as ordinary—condemnation is to distribute throughout the community the loss inflicted upon the individual by the making of the public improvements,” internal quotation marks omitted; Albers, supra, 62 Cal.2d at p. 263, in bank [“the policy underlying the eminent domain provision in the Constitution is to distribute throughout the community the loss inflicted upon the individual by the making of the public improvements,” internal quotation marks omitted].

Breidert v. S. Pac. Co. (1964) 61 Cal.2d 659, 662 [railroad was an active joint participant with city], citing Talbott v. Turlock Irr. Dist. (1933) 217 Cal. 504, 506 [irrigation district acting jointly with improvement district]; see also Civ. Code, § 1431). But this Court has never extended inverse condemnation liability to a private actor—such as a privately owned utility—acting alone without a government entity.

The two Court of Appeal decisions that did take that step, extending inverse condemnation liability to privately owned utilities (see Barham, supra, 74 Cal.App.4th 744, and Pacific Bell, supra, 208 Cal.App.4th 1400), did so on the express assumption that the cost-spreading rationale would apply in full force. Specifically, the Court of Appeal assumed that privately owned utilities would be able to include the cost of inverse condemnation liability in their rates and thereby spread the cost among the customers benefitting from their operations. (See Barham, supra, 74 Cal.App.4th at p. 752, citing Belair, supra, 47 Cal.3d at p. 558; Pac. Bell, supra, 208 Cal.App.4th at p. 1407.)

Like this case, Barham involved a fire allegedly ignited by a power line. (74 Cal.App.4th at p. 747.) The plaintiffs in Barham alleged that high winds caused a section of a power line to break, causing superheated components to fall and ignite a brush fire that damaged their property. (Id. at p. 748.) They sued a privately owned utility, Southern California Edison (“SCE”), for, among other things, inverse condemnation. (Id. at p. 751.) The trial court ruled that SCE was not subject to claims for inverse condemnation as a matter of law, but the Fourth District reversed. (Ibid.) Although the Fourth District recognized that inverse condemnation applies only where a “public agency” has damaged a property for “public use,” it concluded that, under the circumstances of the case, “SCE may be liable in inverse condemnation as a public entity.” (Id. at p. 753.) The court noted that, in Gay Law Students Association v. Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. (1979) 24 Cal.3d 458 (“Gay Law Students”), this Court had treated a privately owned utility as a government entity for equal protection purposes. (Barham, supra, 74 Cal.App.4th at p. 753.) In addition, it noted that publicly owned utilities had been held liable for inverse condemnation (ibid., citing Marshall v. Dep’t of Water & Power (1990) 219 Cal.App.3d 1124, and Aetna Life & Casualty Co. v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 170 Cal.App.3d 865), and stated that it was “not convinced that any significant differences exist regarding the operation of publicly versus privately owned electrical utilities” as applied to the facts in the case before it. (Ibid.)

Following Barham, the Second Appellate District held in Pacific Bell that SCE was liable for inverse condemnation. (208 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1404–1408.) SCE argued that the cost-spreading rationale underlying inverse condemnation does not apply to privately owned utilities because such utilities “do[] not have taxing authority and may raise rates only with approval of California’s Public Utilities Commission.” (Id. at p. 1407.) Relying on Barham, the Second District rejected this argument, reasoning that SCE “ha[d] not pointed to any evidence to support its implication that the [CPUC] would not allow [SCE] adjustments to pass on damages liability during its periodic reviews.” (Id. at pp. 1407–1408.)

There is now irrefutable evidence that, contrary to the assumption underlying Barham and Pacific Bell, the CPUC will not automatically allow privately owned utilities to pass on inverse condemnation liability to the ratepayers who benefit from those utilities’ public improvements. In the recent proceedings relating to SDG&E, the CPUC refused to allow the utility to include in its rates the costs it incurred in settling inverse condemnation claims. (8 App.

2686.) Instead, the CPUC required the utility to show that its conduct leading up to the fires in question satisfied the demanding “prudent manager” standard. Finding that SDG&E did not satisfy that standard, the CPUC denied recovery for the inverse condemnation payments. (8 App. 2753–2756.) “Inverse condemnation principles,” the CPUC held, “are not relevant to a Commission reasonableness review under the prudent manager standard” and do not affect the CPUC’s “exclusive jurisdiction over cost recovery/cost allocation issues involving Commission regulated utilities.” (8 App. 2749, bold and italics added.)

The CPUC decision thus shows that privately owned utilities are significantly different from publicly owned utilities because they are unable to automatically spread the costs of inverse condemnation to the ratepayers who benefit from their electric transmission and distribution systems. Several CPUC Commissioners explicitly noted this conflict, stating that judicial precedent had applied inverse condemnation to privately owned utilities “without really grappling with the salient difference between public and private utilities, which is that there is no guaranty that ... private utilities can recover the cost from their rate payers.” (8 App. 2793, at 21:50–22:00.)

In other words, the CPUC decision subjects PG&E and other privately owned utilities to a legal whipsaw. On the one hand, they are subject to strict liability for inverse condemnation, and must provide compensation for property damage without regard to fault or even foreseeability. On the other hand, they are barred from recovering this compensation through rate making unless they can satisfy the heavy burden imposed by the CPUC's prudent manager standard. (8 App. 2753–54; In re S. Cal. Edison (1990) 37 CPUC.2d 488, 499.) No governmental entity or public utility needs to satisfy such a standard before it may recover its strict liability inverse condemnation costs through taxation or unilateral rate recovery.

In light of the CPUC's own conclusion that "the logic for applying inverse condemnation to utilities ... is unsound" (8 App. 2764), this Court should grant review to decide whether Barham and Pacific Bell were correctly decided. The CPUC Commissioners themselves have "respectfully urge[d] the California Courts of Appeal to carefully consider the rationale for applying inverse condemnation in these types of cases." (8 App. 2760, 2765–66 [President and Commissioner Picker and Commissioner Guzman Aceves concurring]; 8 App.

2793, at 21:29–44 [“the doctrine of inverse condemnation as it’s been developed by the courts and applied to public utilities may be worth reexamining,” Commissioner Rechtschaffen]; 8 App. 2793, at 22:00–22:07 [“this is an issue that the legislature and the courts may wish to examine and may be called on to examine in the future,” Commissioner Rechtschaffen].)

Contrary to the Superior Court’s suggestion below (10 App. 3383–84, 3394), this Court’s decision in Gay Law Students, supra, 24 Cal. 3d 458 (cited in Pacific Bell, supra, 208 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1406–1407; Barham, supra, 74 Cal.App.4th at p. 753), does not resolve the question. Gay Law Students did not address inverse condemnation. It held that the Equal Protection Clause barred a privately owned utility, like a state actor, from engaging in employment discrimination because the quasi-monopoly power granted privately owned utilities limits competition that might otherwise discourage discriminatory practices and thereby enlists taxpayers in indirect support of the discriminatory practices. (Id. at pp. 469–474.) As other Court of Appeal decisions have recognized, however, Gay Law Students is a context-specific holding addressed only to the problem of arbitrary discrimination. (See Auto. Sprinkler Corp. v. S.

Cal. Edison Co. (1989) 216 Cal.App.3d 627, 633; Pasillas v. Agric. Labor Relations Bd. (1984) 156 Cal.App.3d 312, 348.) It provides no justification for generally treating privately owned utilities as public entities or for treating them as public utilities for purposes of inverse condemnation.

And unlike the concern that a quasi-monopolistic utility will be free to engage in employment discrimination without competitive checks, there are ample alternative mechanisms for discouraging privately owned utilities from engaging in conduct that damages private property. Most importantly, privately owned utilities, unlike governmental entities traditionally subject to inverse condemnation liability, may be sued in tort as they are not public entities for purposes of sovereign immunity from tort liability. (See Gov't Code, § 811.2.) Thus private property owners may sue privately owned utilities more freely than they may sue governmental entities, not less. This is an important distinction for purposes of inverse condemnation. (See, e.g., Albers, supra, 62 Cal.2d at p. 256 [“The [constitutional] provision [from which inverse condemnation has been developed] permits an action against the state, which cannot be sued without its consent. It is designed, not to create new causes of action, but to give a remedy for a cause of action that would otherwise exist,” quoting Archer v. City of Los Angeles (1941) 19 Cal.2d 19, 24[.] Thus, applying Gay Law Students to inverse condemnation turns the reasoning of that case on its head.

Moreover, continuing to impose inverse condemnation liability on private utilities under Barham and Pacific Bell in the face of the CPUC’s decision rejecting those decisions’ cost-spreading rationale would raise serious constitutional questions. Holding PG&E strictly liable for inverse condemnation when it is unable to recover those costs through its rates unless it satisfies a “prudent manager” standard would itself raise unconstitutional takings concerns. The Takings Clause “prevent[s] the government from forcing some people alone to bear the public burdens which, in all fairness and justice, should be borne by the public as a whole.” (E. Enters. v. Apfel (1998), 524 U.S. 498, 522, internal quotation marks omitted.) Unreimbursed inverse condemnation liability forces privately owned utilities to bear alone the burden of compensating individual homeowners for damage caused by a public improvement—here, the

Similarly, applying inverse condemnation to PG&E without public reimbursement would raise substantive due process concerns. The Fourteenth Amendment protects against government deprivations of life, liberty, or property that are arbitrary and irrational. (See, e.g., State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 416–417; Action Apartment Assn. v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (9th Cir. 2007) 509 F.3d 1020, 1025–1026.) Taking PG&E’s property without automatic rate recovery is not substantially related to the stated cost-spreading justification for inverse condemnation. (See, e.g., Sinaloa Lake Owners Assn. v. City of Simi Valley (9th Cir. 1989) 864 F.2d 1475, 1484–1487.) Inverse condemnation law should not be applied in such an arbitrary and unjustified fashion.

The Court should grant review to resolve these conflicts.

II. THE PETITION RAISES A QUESTION OF GREAT IMPORTANCE TO THE CALIFORNIA ECONOMY

The Court should also grant review because the question whether privately owned utilities are subject to unrecoverable inverse condemnation liability is an important and recurring issue that warrants this Court's attention. Until resolved, that question will have grave practical consequences with rippling effects throughout the State.

Privately owned utilities are vital to California's economy, employing more than 40,000 Californians and providing electric power to over three-quarters of California's residents through a service area that covers more than three-quarters of the State.³ They also play an important role in California's commitment to clean, renewable energy, meaning that the financial health of privately owned utilities has far-reaching implications for California's environmental goals as well

For example, on November 30, 2017, following the CPUC's denial of SDG&E's application to recover inverse condemnation costs, an analyst noted that, "to the average investor[, inverse condemnation liability] seems a uniquely unpalatable proposition of socialized no-fault liability despite no assurance of presumed recoverability in the CPUC rate-setting process."⁵ On December 12, 2017, following ignition of the Thomas Fire in SCE's service territory, another analyst wrote that there were “too many unknowns and significant risk,” rendering California utilities “uninvestable right now.”⁶ Finally, on December 21, 2017, following PG&E Corporation’s announcement that it was suspending the quarterly common dividend due to financial uncertainties following the October 2017 Wine Country wildfires, a third analyst opined that, “unless the law is changed regarding application of inverse condemnation to investor-owned utilities or the CPUC changes its position on recovery under that law, the CA utilities will see this material increase in their cost of capital persist and amplify, stressing their ability to invest in CA infrastructure and help the state meet its aggressive clean energy agenda.”⁷

The uncertainty facing privately owned utilities has also negatively affected their creditworthiness, potentially affecting their ability to obtain financing through debt instruments. In February 2018, for example, two of the three largest credit rating agencies downgraded PG&E Corporation’s and PG&E’s credit ratings from A- to BBB+ and placed them on a negative rating watch to reflect the possibility of further, future downgrades because of potentially large—and unrecoverable—liabilities due to inverse condemnation.⁸ This month, PG&E Corporation and PG&E were further downgraded to BBB, with a continuing negative rating watch, because of “the company’s exposure to the California wildfires and its ability to recover associated costs from ratepayers” under the doctrine of inverse condemnation.⁹ Further credit downgrades may follow “[a]bsent a near-term resolution” of the “disconnect” between the judicial strict liability and regulatory prudence standards for inverse condemnation.¹⁰

In recognition of these financial pressures on privately owned utilities, CPUC President and Commissioner Picker noted in recent remarks before the California State Assembly Standing Committee on Utilities and Energy:

[T]he financial pressure on utilities from inverse condemnation may lead to higher rates for ratepayers. Investor-owned utilities are partially dependent on capital markets to raise money and the insurance market to mitigate financial risk; if strict liability is imposed for damage associated with wildfires caused in whole or part by a utility infrastructure, the risk profile of the investor-owned utility may be questioned by investors and insurance providers alike. The increase in cost of capital and expense associated with insurance could lead to the higher rates for ratepayers, even in instances where the investor-owned utility complied with the Commission's safety standards.

And as the Vice Chair of the Utilities and Energy Committee similarly warned at the same hearing:

We have an immediate crisis that is literally going to affect 70% of the population of the State of California that receives its electricity from utilities. And the problem is it's been pretty well directly stated, it's the strict liability standard. The utilities are being held 100% liable, even if they're 1%, even if they followed all appropriate rules and procedures. And this has led to uninsurability. It has probably turned into at least ... an investor freeze of ability to raise capital under these circumstances. We've already heard about one [investor-owned utility] given a premium of $120 million for $300 million worth of coverage. That's not insurance. PG&E is BBB+ right now, billions of dollars in market losses. Edison took a $6 billion hit recently. I am really concerned that if this trend and if this arc of facts continues, I think we're heading towards bankruptcy for [investor-owned utilities]. I really think this is a coming crisis.

(10 App. 3179 at 1:14:13–1:15:45 [remarks of California Assemblyman Jim Patterson].)

These adverse effects from unreimbursed inverse condemnation liability against privately owned utilities will only be magnified as wildfires (and wildfire litigation) increase exponentially with climate change. Officials from the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection (“Cal Fire”) have warned that recent trends “reflect a major shift in wildfires, one ... seen over the past 10 years ... [showing that w]ildfires are becoming more damaging and destructive.”¹¹ They also have cautioned that fire season could now persist year-round.¹² Thus, as the Chief Justice recently recognized, the State is facing an “onslaught” of wildfire cases.¹³

For example, the Butte Fire at issue in this case spawned thousands of claims (10 App. 3427), and the 2007 San Diego wildfire cases at issue in the SDG&E application denied by the CPUC involved thousands more. (8 App. 2529.) In addition, dozens of actions asserting inverse condemnation claims against privately owned utilities filed by thousands of plaintiffs across the State were recently consolidated as the Southern California Fire Cases, No. JCCP 4965, in Ventura County, and as the California North Bay Fire Cases, No. JCCP 4995, in San Francisco County. Virtually all of these cases include inverse condemnation claims against privately owned utilities implicating the issue raised in this petition.

Moreover, the number of such wildfire cases is only likely to increase in the future. By the end of this century, temperatures in the United States are expected to rise another 3.5 degrees Celsius,¹⁴ or over 6 degrees Fahrenheit. The increase in the risk of wildfires caused by increased temperatures is exponential, not linear, meaning that each degree increase in temperature may herald a much greater proportional increase in the number and severity of wildfires.¹⁵ Indeed, of the twenty most destructive wildfires in California since 1932, five occurred in 2017, and thirteen occurred after 2000, including the five largest.¹⁶

These grave consequences create an urgent need for this Court's intervention. This Court should grant review to determine whether California consumers, businesses, and the State's economy should be jeopardized by the continued application of inverse condemnation to privately owned utilities in the wake of the CPUC's decision. And the Court should answer that question now, before the onslaught of inverse condemnation litigation irreparably harms privately owned utilities and the residents of the State they serve.

III. ALTERNATIVELY, THE COURT SHOULD GRANT AND TRANSFER TO THE COURT OF APPEAL

Alternatively, if the Court does not grant review and consider the issue presented itself, it should transfer this case to the Court of Appeal with instructions to issue an alternative writ and review the Superior Court's decision on the merits. In light of the CPUC's decision rejecting the assumption underlying the Barham and Pacific Bell decisions that the trial court believed it was obliged to follow, the Court of Appeal should reexamine the merits of those decisions.

CONCLUSION

The petition for review should be granted and the question presented reviewed by this Court. Alternatively, the Court should grant the petition and transfer this case to the Court of Appeal with instructions to issue an alternative writ and consider PG&E's writ petition on the merits.
